The AMGA 2017 Annual Conference, held March 23-25 at Gaylord Texan near Dallas, Texas, was another successful event for us. The strong conference program—which included an inspiring and provocative selection of general session speakers, highly attended peer-to-peer track sessions, a large exhibit hall, and excellent networking opportunities—attracted more than 2,000 participants, making it one of our most successful national events.

This dynamic, cutting-edge gathering has become the gold standard for leadership conferences in health care, primarily because of the caliber of presenting faculty and attending healthcare professionals. AMGA continues to receive positive feedback from attendees praising this meeting as one of the most valuable conferences they and their teams have ever attended. These pages feature some of the highlights of the event.

Mel Robbins, entrepreneur and bestselling author, shared the 5-Second Rule and strategies to help you achieve your professional and personal dreams.

AMGA 2017 Board Chair Donn E. Sorensen, president, east region, Mercy, delivered an inspiring address about the challenges members will face in the coming years and how AMGA is helping them meet these challenges.

Jeremy Gutsche, chief executive officer, TrendHunter, detailed how to overcome the neurological traps in our brain that block our organizations from realizing their full potential.

Eric J. Topol, M.D., director, Scripps Translational Science Institute, encouraged attendees to embrace technology and innovation.
